

Dr. C. Jama Adams
Associate Professor and
Chair, Dept. of Africana Studies

Dr. Adam's research interests include masculinities, fatherhood and black identity in the age of cultural ambiguity. His expertise lies in organizational issues in social service agencies, parenting, and black thought in an era of cultural ambiguity. For more information on Dr. Adam's research please visit his webpage.

Dr. Maureen Allwood
Assistant Professor
Department of Psychology

Dr. Allwood's research interests focus on children and adolescents' emotional, behavioral and physiological response to trauma and violence (e.g., war, domestic, community violence), including Posttraumatic Stress Disorder and delinquent behaviors. She is also interested in integrating and developing innovative research methodology designed to improve the early detection of trauma-exposed youth who are at risk for maladaptive outcomes (e.g., delinquency, problematic substance use, suicidality). For more information about Dr. Allwood's research please visit her webpage.

Dr. Jana Arsovska
Assistant Professor
Department of Sociology

In her dissertation, Dr. Arsovska studies the role of cultural codes in the evolution of ethnic Albanian organized crime groups. Arsovska has been involved in many international projects on organized crime. She has also acted as a consultant for several organizations, including the World Bank. Prior to her current post, she worked for the European Forum for Restorative Justice and underwent training at INTERPOL. For more information on Dr. Arsovska's research please visit her webpage.

A therapist/no info available. For more information on Dr. Bonifacio's research please visit his webpage.

Dr. Philip Bonifacio
Professor
Department of Psychology

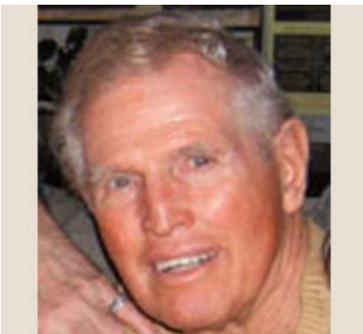

Dr. Hernando Estevez
Assistant Professor
Department of Philosophy

Dr. Estevez's primary interest is Latin American philosophy. He teaches and conducts research in the areas of 20th Century continental philosophy and social political philosophy. He is interested in the ways in which the notion of political identity during the formation of state in 19th Century Latin American countries contributes to the idea of citizenry. He is currently conducting research in the rhetoric of Latin American literature and its relation to perennial problems of philosophy. For more information on Dr. Estevez's research please visit his webpage.

Dr. Beverly Frazier
Assistant Professor
Law, Police Science

Dr. Terry Furst
Associate Professor
Department of Anthropology

Dr. Furst's focus over the last two decades has been on ethnographic research on subcultures of drug abusers, illegal drug markets, sex workers, street drug dealers, the transmission of HIV among injecting drug users, the evaluation of street outreach intervention workers, the adulteration of heroin in New York City, and the diffusion of heroin in the mid-Hudson region of New York State. For more information on Dr. Furst's research please visit his webpage.

Dr. P.J. Gibson
Professor
Department of English

To date, Prof. Gibson has written over thirty plays, Long Time Since Yesterday has alone upwards of sixty productions. Her other works have been presented throughout the United States, Europe, and Africa. A published writer, Ms. Gibson also has numerous poems and short stories to her credit. She has been the recipient of many honors including the Bushfire Theatre of Performing Arts Seventh Annual "Walk of Fame" where her signature and hand print is imprinted in their Sidewalk of Fame, a Shubert Fellowship, a playwriting grant from the National Endowment for the Arts, two prestigious Audelco Awards, two PSC-CUNY Research Award grants and six playwriting commissions. For more information on Prof. Gibson's research please visit her webpage.

Dr. Demis Glasford
Assistant Professor
Department of Psychology

The focus of much of Dr. Glasford's work is concerned with understanding three interrelated streams of research: (a) how people make decisions about whether and how to act in response to injustice, (b) what compels people to collective action or to resist their subordinated position within a given social system, and (c) how to improve relations between groups of differing power. For more information on Dr. Glasford's research please visit his webpage.

Dr. Bill Gottdiener
Professor
Department of Psychology

The research in Dr. Gottdiener's lab focuses on understanding the relationship between psychological pain and impulsive behavior in people who have been diagnosed with an addiction. In addition, members of his lab are developing a psychodynamic treatment for these problems. For more information on Dr. Gottdiener's research please visit his webpage.

Dr. Maki Haberfeld
Full Professor, Chairperson
Dept. of Criminal Justice

Dr. Haberfeld has conducted research in the areas of public and private law enforcement, integrity, and white-collar crime in the United States, Eastern and Western Europe and Israel. In addition to her research, she has also provided leadership training to a number of police agencies. For more information on Dr. Haberfeld's research please visit her webpage.

Dr. Elizabeth Jeglic
Assistant Professor
Department of Psychology

Dr. Jeglic is currently a licensed clinical psychologist in New York State. Her research interests fall broadly in two domains: (1) the assessment and treatment of suicidal behavior and (2) sex offender assessment, treatment and public policy. Dr. Jeglic's current research interests include the use of an emotional stroop test for suicide assessment and the development of empirically based intervention programs for suicidal Hispanic college students. For more information on Dr. Jeglic's research please visit her webpage.

Dr. Catherine Kemp
Assistant Professor
Department of Philosophy

Dr. Kemp specializes in Philosophy of Law and Modern Philosophy, especially David Hume. For more information on Dr. Kemp's research please visit her webpage.

Dr. Margaret Bull Kovera
Professor
Department of Psychology

Professor Kovera uses social psychological theory and methods to test legal assumptions about human behavior. She studies issues related to eyewitness identifications, scientific evidence, and juror decision making. She currently has grants from the National Science Foundation to study the effects of double-blind lineup administration, the efficacy of a new method of presenting expert evidence that is supposed to reduce experts' allegiance to the party that hired them, and the future of jury decision making research. For more information on Dr. Kovera's research please visit her webpage.

Dr. Randall LaSalle
Associate Professor
Department of Economics

Associate Professor Randall LaSalle is a Certified Public Accountant and a Certified Fraud Examiner. He teaches Forensic Accounting and related courses. He is frequently honored for his teaching excellence and has served on the editorial boards of several professional journals. For more information on Dr. LaSalle's research please visit his webpage.

Dr. Isaac Xerxes Malki
Assistant Professor
Department of Africana Studies

Dr. Malki's research has focuses on immigrant communities in West Africa, and his field work has taken him to Ghana, Lebanon, Nigeria and Syria. His doctoral research is being edited for publication, and his articles are being published as a contribution to an edited volume as well as in several peer-reviewed journals. For more information on Dr. Malki's research please visit his webpage.

Lori Latrice Martin's research areas include race and ethnicity, wealth inequality and asset poverty. Dr. Martin, a trained sociologist, examines racial and ethnic differences in the types and levels of assets owned over time using census data. Dr. Martin routinely compares Asians, blacks, Hispanics and whites. Dr. Martin also examines how ethnicity matters for blacks on a host of sociological outcomes. For more information on Dr. Martin's research please visit her webpage.

Dr. Lori Martin

Assistant Professor
Department of Africana Studies

Dr. Isabel Martinez

Assistant Professor
Latin American and Latina/o Studies

Dr. Martinez's teaching and research interests include transnationalism, Mexican youth immigration, Mexican borders, and the intersections of race, immigration and technology. Long involved with issues of educational attainment in Latina/o communities, her recently completed research examines the transnational familial, labor and educational experiences of unaccompanied Mexican immigrant youth in New York. For more information on Dr. Martinez's research please visit her webpage.

Dr. Sara McDougall

Assistant Professor
Department of History

Sara McDougall's research focuses on the intersection of gender, religion, and crime in Medieval Europe. Her second book will focus on the criminal prosecution for adultery, but will situate that prosecution in the context of the range of possible responses to an act of adultery, which included not only criminal and civil court proceedings but also extrajudicial punishment enacted publicly or privately, as well as contractual or less formal means of reconciliation. For more information on Dr. McDougall's research please visit her webpage.

Dr. Richard Ocejo

Assistant Professors
Department of Sociology

Dr. Ocejo's primary research interests are on the interrelationship between culture and economy in contemporary cities. He specifically uses the formation of nightlife scenes as an analytical lens for examining a broad range of urban issues, such as gentrification, contestations over community, the use of public space, the formation of cultural communities, and urban growth policies. For more information about Dr. Ocejo's research please visit his webpage.

Dr. Deryn Strange
Associate Professor
Department of Psychology

Dr. Strange is interested in a quirk of memory: how is that we come to remember things that did not happen? Her current research is focused on: a) the cognitive and social psychological factors that influence memory for trauma; b) how easily we can be led to believe that fake news events really happened; and c) whether we can corrupt memory for trial testimony within the courtroom. For more information on Dr. Strange's research please visit her webpage.

Dr. Klaus Von Lampe
Associate Professor
Department of Law, Police Science,
and
Criminal Justice Administration

Dr. Von Lampe has conducted research on the emergence and functioning of illegal markets and illegal power structures, taking the illegal cigarette trade as a case study. Other research interests include drug trafficking, strategic crime analysis and crime prevention. For more information on Dr. Von Lampe's research please visit his webpage.

Dr. Daryl Wout
Assistant Professor
Department of Psychology

For more information on Dr. Wout's research please visit his webpage.

Dr. Elizabeth Yukins
Assistant Professor
Department of English

Dr. Yukins specializes in twentieth-century American literature, with particular interests in critical race theory, women's studies and law and literature. For more information about Dr. Yukins' research please visit her webpage.