Rosemary Barberet

Sociology

Rosemary Barberet is an Associate Professor in the Sociology Department and directs the Master of Arts Degree Program in International Crime and Justice. She has had extensive academic experience in Europe (Spain and England). Her publications have dealt with youth crime, violence against women, victims of crime and comparative methodology. She has chaired the International Division of the American Society of Criminology and been awarded the Herbert Bloch Award of the American Society of Criminology for service to the society and to the professional interests of criminology, as well as the Rafael Salillas Award of the Sociedad Española de Investigación Criminológica. She currently represents the International Sociological Association at the United Nations and is a founding member of Criminologists Without Borders.

Recent Publications, Lectures, and Conference Presentations:

Guest panelist, International Conference on Safety and Justice in Democracy, Universidad Nacional Autónoma de Mexico, Mexico City, June 6, 2011. (On Police Use of Force) Video
Bettina M. Carbonell

Bettina M. Carbonell is Associate Professor in the Department of English and teaches in the interdisciplinary Humanities and Justice Major. Her primary research areas include literature and ethics, literature and human rights, and the representation of difficult history in museum exhibitions. Professor Carbonell is currently engaged in PSC-CUNY grant-funded fieldwork on a comparative study of the collections, exhibitions, framing narratives and public programs at major African American Museums in the U.S. and she will present a paper on the subject at the American Studies Association Annual Conference in San Juan, PR in November 2012. She will also present her current work on African American narrative, personal ethics, and the critical reciprocity between literature and the law at the Annual American Literature Association Conference in San Francisco in May 2012.

Recent Publications, Lectures, and Conference Presentations:

Jean Carmalt

Political Science

Dr. Carmalt holds a Ph.D. in Geography from the University of Washington and a J.D. from Cornell University School of Law. Her research and teaching focus on international law and society, with a particular interest in the right to health, UN human rights processes, and environmental disasters. Her work can be found in journals such as Human Rights Quarterly, Progress in Human Geography, and Studies in Law, Politics, and Society, as well as in edited volumes by Cambridge University Press, Routledge, and Oxford University Press. She teaches core Law and Society courses, including the introductory class. Dr. Carmalt previously taught at Drake University in the Law, Politics, and Society Program.
Marcia Esparza

Marcia Esparza earned her baccalaureate (Summa Cum Laude) at Hunter College and her doctoral degree in Sociology at the University at Albany, SUNY. She has also undertaken human rights courses in France and Switzerland. Dr. Esparza’s research areas include state violence, genocide and memory-silence in the aftermath of mass killings. Her research experience includes her work for the United Nations’ sponsored Truth Commission in Guatemala. Dr. Esparza is the Founder and Director of the Historical Memory Project, a forum for documenting state violence in Latin America, paying particular attention to human rights abuses against indigenous population in Latin America. She has presented her research in Athens, Greece and most recently, in Sarajevo, Bosnia. Among her current research projects is the examination of Cold War perpetrators’ memories in Chile. She has published in leading academic journals. She has received prestigious fellowships from the Ford Foundation (2010-2011) and the National Endowment for the Humanities (2011-2012).

Recent Publications, Lectures, and Conference Presentations:

Silenced Communities in the Aftermath of War and Genocide and Guatemala (forthcoming).
Anissa Hélie grew up in Algiers, Algeria, and has been involved with various women’s organizations and transnational networks – serving as Director of the Women Living Under Muslim Laws (WLULM) International Coordination Office for 5 years (2000-2004). Anissa Hélie speaks internationally sexuality, wars and conflicts, religious fundamentalisms and women’s human rights. She has widely published on these topics, including: Documenting Women’s Rights Violations by Non-State Actors: Experiences of Activists from Muslim communities (2006), "The Politics of Abortion Policy in the Heterogeneous Muslim World", in Self-Determination and Women’s Rights in Muslim Societies, Raghavan, Chitra and Levine, James (eds.), Brandeis University, Gender, Culture, Religion, and Law Series (forthcoming July 2012), and Sexuality in Muslim Contexts: Rights and Resistance, London: ZED Press (forthcoming October 2012).
Susan Kang is an Assistant Professor in the Political Science Department. She received a BA from the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign and a PhD from the University of Minnesota. Her research and teaching interests include international relations, international political economy, labor and human rights, and international law. She has published articles in the following journals: New Political Science, Human Rights Quarterly and Journal of Workplace Rights. Her book on trade union rights will be published by the University of Pennsylvania Press in 2012.

Recent Publications, Lectures, and Conference Presentations:

Suzanne Oboler

Latin American and Latina/o Studies

Recent Publications, Lectures, and Conference Presentations:

“Nativismo, Imigração e Pertencimento: Latinos nas (ir)realidades americanas do século XXI.” Desigualdade & Diversidade: Revista de Ciencias Sociais da PUC-Rio, #7 (Jul/Dec, 2010);

“The Ironies of History: Puerto Rico’s Status and the Nomination of Judge Sonia Sotomayor.” American Philosophical Association Newsletter on Hispanic/Latino Issues in Philosophy, Fall 2009; Vol. 9 (1)

“Migration, Ethnicity and Citizenship.” Invited Lecture Interdisciplinary Graduate Program in Regional Development. (NEDER). Universidade do Vale do Rio Doce, Governador Valadares, Minas Gerais Brazil. July 1, 2011

Media Interviews (2012)

NY1 News Interview. “Queens College Kicks Off Immigrant Heritage Week.” April 18, 2012.

Edward Paulino is an assistant professor in the department of history at CUNY’s John Jay College. He teaches a variety of classes from global history to the history of genocide. He specializes in the 1937 Haitian Massacre and has a manuscript under review on the role of the Dominican state in creating a racial border against Haiti. He is a member of the International Association of Genocide Scholars and is a member of the John Jay Human Rights minor. He is the co-organizer of the www.borderoflights.org which was founded to commemorate the 75th anniversary of the 1937 Haitian Massacre by remembering the 20,000 men, women, and children that were murdered by the Dominican dictator Rafael Trujillo.
Daniel R. Pinello is a Professor in the Department of Political Science. Cambridge University Press published Professor Pinello's Gay Rights and American Law in 2003 and issued his textbook, America's Struggle for Same-Sex Marriage, in 2006. His scholarship also includes “Location, Location, Location: Same-Sex Relationship Rights by State” (American Bar Association 2009) and "Is Supreme Court Justice Antonin Scalia a Homophobe?" (2005). Professor Pinello’s current research focuses on the implementation and grassroots effects of Super-DOMAs, which are state constitutional amendments banning recognition of all forms of relationship rights for same-sex couples. He has served on the American Political Science Association's Committee on the Status of Lesbians, Gays, Bisexuals, and the Transgendered in the Profession. Professor Pinello has been an external reviewer for Cambridge University Press, the Journal of Politics, Law & Social Inquiry, Law & Society Review, the National Science Foundation, Oxford University Press, Political Research Quarterly, Routledge, and Stanford University Press. He is the principal organizer of the boycott of the 2012 Annual Meeting of the American Political Science Association. Professor Pinello teaches courses on American government and politics, constitutional law, judicial processes and politics, and the law and politics of sexual orientation. See his personal Web site at www.danpinello.com
Jodie Roure

Latin American and Latina/o Studies

Professor Roure JD, PhD, is an Associate Professor in the Latin American and Latina/o Studies Department and teaches in the areas of domestic violence/gender rights, criminal justice, international human rights, international criminal justice, race, class and ethnicity in the U.S., and Latina/o studies. She is a former United States Supreme Court intern and directs the St. John’s Law School Prep Program at John Jay. Professor Roure has conducted extensive research in the area of human rights including violence against women in Brasil, Puerto Rico, Dominican Republic, Cuba, and the United States and is an expert witness in this area. She also conducts research on pipeline education, race, class ethnicity and gender in the U.S. Multiple publications can be found at:

Recent Publications, Lectures, and Conference Presentations:
Recent publications include:

2011 Rivera, J. and Roure, J.G. So You Want to be a Lawyer. Puerto Ricans and Their Journey into the Legal Profession: Overcoming Challenges. Accepted for publication in El Centro Journal for Puerto Rican Studies Hunter College, CUNY (Forthcoming Summer 2012).

Invited Academic Presentations

2011 Roure, J.G. So You Want to be a Lawyer. Puerto Ricans and Their Journey into the Legal Profession: Overcoming Challenges. Invited by Associate Dean Penny Andrews to co-present to the CUNY Law School Faculty. Queens, New York.

Academic Conference Presentations

Expert Witness Testimony
2010 Conduct research, provide declarations, and expert testimony In the Matters of Lucas Crispim Alves (aka Lucas Alves Dias Crispim) and Aline Crispim, two cases seeking asylum for domestic violence victims from Brazil. I worked with the global firm of Reed Smith’s pro bono program which represents clients seeking asylum. San Francisco, California.

Case Consultant
In 2010 Served as family consultant to the family of Monica Burgos for the Beresford Redman homicide case. This high profile case involved Beresford Redman, producer of Survivor, who was charged with murdering his wife in Mexico while on vacation with their minor children. The case involved national and international criminal and civil law issues and family law matters.

International Government Consulting

2002 Working Group Participant and International Scholarly Consultant for the Brazilian Government Working Group on Law 9099/95 (Domestic Violence Reform Group). Invited by President Cardoso of Brazil, the State Minister of Justice, the State Minister of Exterior Relations, and the Secretary of State for Women Rights of Brazil as a participant and international presence. The only non-Brazilian to serve on the working group and make recommendations to the government. Brasilia, Brazil.